Description

Walter Becker's (Steely Dan) 1930s Bacon & Day Seniorita S-6, serial number 1147, manufactured briefly in the mid-1930s by Bacon Banjo. The flat top acoustic guitar features a spruce top with inlaid pick-guard, finished in a dark sunburst. The pearloid head stock face, like the inlays, features incised and painted decorations and is additionally set with rhinestones. The backside of the headstock is stamped with the serial number 1147 and the interior is affixed with a paper label for Bacon Banjo Co. Inc. of Groton, Connecticut. Accompanied by the original faux alligator hard shell case. Walter Becker (1950-2017) was an American musician, songwriter, and producer who along with Donald Fagen was a co-founding member of the rock fusion band Steely Dan. Becker and Fagen began their musical careers as songwriters, before forming Steely Dan in 1971. Steely Dan began as a traditional band with a permanent lineup before Becker and Fagen retreated to the studio in 1974 as a duo. They hired session musicians for their subsequent releases, pushing the envelope in musical production with influences from rock, jazz, and blues - later described as part of the "yacht rock" genre. Steely Dan broke up in 1981, but reformed in the 1990s. 3D Model   Walter Becker - 1930s Bacon & Day Seniorita S-6 by Znyth Technologies on
